FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Police presence at intersections helps traffic flow during Mets spring training games

As we welcome the 2015 National League Champs back to their spring training home, the City of Port St. Lucie also welcomes all the traffic they bring with them. New York Mets spring training games are in full swing at Tradition Field through March and you may have noticed some changes at the surrounding intersections.

Port St. Lucie Public Works and the Port St. Lucie Police Department began coordinating with Mets staff in 2015 to discuss a plan for limiting traffic issues around the stadium in a safe and efficient manner. During games, Port St. Lucie Police Officers will be assigned to several key intersections to assist in maintaining the flow of traffic.

The following intersections with traffic signals will be in flashing mode during spring training games:

- I-95 Southbound on ramp
- Peacock Blvd. and University Blvd.
- Courtyard Cir. and Peacock Blvd.
- California Blvd. and University Blvd.

Officers will place the signals in flash mode approximately two hours before the start of each game, and then again for approximately one to one and a half hours after the completion of each game. Officers remain on-site the entire time the signals are in flash mode.

Most games start at 1:10 p.m., so unless you're attending, you may want to seek an alternate route if you need to travel around the Tradition Field area of St. Lucie West at that time.

If you cannot avoid this area, please use caution when traveling through the flashing intersections. If you are attending a game, again please use caution, and "Go Mets!"
