

Our Role

We always say that it takes a village to care for our animals. It's that same village that helps get others into loving forever homes. Social media has been a vital tool in getting our residents adopted. When an animal is at-risk of coming to the shelter, we enlist the help of our village. Using Home-to-Home, we can assist you in the search for a new home while your pet stays in your care, without ever spending a night in the shelter.

ALTOGETHER

What to Consider

Rehoming is a tough decision that can sometimes be avoided. The Humane Society of St. Lucie County offers a variety of resources designed to help you keep your pet.

Free pet food is available to the public at our shelter

Discounted training and behavioral resources are available upon request

Finding a New Home

If you believe that finding a new home for your pet is the best option, here are some helpful tips:

Be Honest

It's not fair to your pet to send them to a new home with false expectations about their behavior or medical requirements. Honesty ensures their new home is equipped to care for them.

Connect

Friends, family, and social media are your most powerful tools when searching for a new home for your pet.

Say No

Don't be afraid to say no when someone's intentions for your pet may not align with yours.

Ask for Help

Breed-specific rescues and shelters, including the Humane Society of St. Lucie County, have resources meant to help you find your pet a new home.

Ask Questions

Make sure your pet's next home is a good one! Here are some tips that'll help you make the best decision.

- Ask about their history with animals and for more information on their current pets
- Ask about who will be living in the home alongside your pet
- Ask about their plans for the future and if you can visit their home
- Ask for valid ID and if they can sign a rehoming agreement
